My name is Ramez Tadros, and I would like to share some personal experiences about American Foundry Society with you. I transferred to Bradley University as a mechanical engineering student from a community college near my home in Chicago. Soon after, I enrolled in the manufacturing engineering curriculum because I felt it better matched my future goals.

I originally joined American Foundry Society (AFS) for the free pizza. AFS holds monthly meetings with pizza and a guest speaker. The guest speakers provide valuable insight and information on a wide range of topics. Many times, students who attended these meetings have been hired into a company with the help of the guest speaker.

In addition to guest speakers, AFS members tour various manufacturing facilities. We see awe-inspiring high tech manufacturing processes that are very interesting.

Dr. Sverdlin is the Bradley University chapter advisor. He is very dedicated to teaching and helping students through AFS. As my professor, he encouraged me to help out with a project he was overseeing. The project consisted of the design and production of aluminum card holders that would be distributed mainly to AFS advisors. It was a good experience and made me even more interested in manufacturing engineering.

As the current president of the American Foundry Society chapter I invite all students to check us out. AFS is great organization that truly gives back to the students. During the last AFS meeting, three Bradley students, including myself, and one high school student were given scholarship granted by AFS.

Premier Event: Ribs for Cribs

The Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils are pleased to announce a new event for Welcome Week 2006: Ribs for Cribs.

This fundraiser for Habitat for Humanity will feature a rib cook-off on Friday, August 25 from 4-8pm on Olin Quad.

Organizations will be paired with each other to create the best tasting ribs on campus. The residence hall cafeterias will be closed for dinner so that all students can participate in this innovative event.

In addition to great tasting ribs, the event will feature live music and other fun events. And don't worry if you are a vegetarian, there will be food to fit your tastes as well.

If your organization is interested in participating in Ribs for Cribs, please contact Katie McGurn at kmcgurn@bradley.edu.
