Heart Breaker

There's something about that pair of jeans.
The jeans that are worn and ripped
with unintentional intentional holes.
The kind that hug and highlight the best parts.
When I squeeze into these jeans,
the boys' heads turn, and the girls move their hands in front of their mouths
to cover the envy and the gossip.
They want to ask, but no one does.
I strut. Like I'm putting on a show for the whole world to see.
They're the kind of jeans that make you hold on tight to your man.
Don't fall in love,
even though I know it will happen.
These jeans can make you melt, even when I've broken your heart.
You'll be charmed and flustered.
These jeans can drive you crazy.
I wear them like it's my job,
like it's the one thing I was put on this earth to do.
